REVISED INSTITUTIONAL RESPONSE OF
THE UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE TO
AMERICAN POSTAL WORKERS UNION INTERROGATORY [ERRATA]

APWU/USPS-21 In response to APWU/USPS-T1-34 Mr. Williams stated that “the Postal Service is currently evaluating new service areas and assessing any potential changes required for Express Mail and Priority Mail service standards.”

- a) Please provide the current performance data for Priority Mail and Express Mail.
- b) Once the evaluation referenced in Mr. Williams’ response is complete, please provide the list of changed 3-digit Zip Code pairs for Priority Mail and Express Mail.

RESPONSE:

- a) Please see USPS-LR-N2012-1/NP26, filed under seal, for the requested service performance data.
- b) The evaluation referenced in Mr. Williams’ response is still ongoing, and is contingent upon the final determination and implementation of the network changes. The Postal Service will provide the list of 3-digit ZIP Code pairs for Priority Mail and Express Mail once the evaluation is complete.

AMERICAN POSTAL WORKERS UNION INTERROGATORY [ERRATA]

APWU/USPS-22 Does the Postal Service measure the volume of “turnaround” Priority Mail?

- a) What is the current percentage of Priority Mail that currently receives overnight delivery?
- b) What percentage of Priority Mail that currently receives overnight delivery will shift to 2-day delivery in the new rationalized network?

Preamble) No.

- a) Please see USPS-LR-N2012-1/NP26, filed under seal, for the percentage of Priority Mail volume that received overnight delivery in FY2011.
- b) As the Postal Service is still evaluating new service areas and assessing any potential changes required for Express Mail and Priority Mail service standards, and the list of 3-digit ZIP Code pairs for Priority Mail and Express Mail is not yet complete, the Postal Service has not yet determined the future origin-destination 3-digit ZIP Code pairs that will have either overnight or 2-day service once network changes are implemented.
